ESCI Field Camp: Participant Norms

1. Follow all WWU and ESCI Field Camp risk management and safety policies, including expedition-specific policies determined during pre-trip environmental briefings.

2. Show respect, support, compassion, and kindness to other Field Camp participants.

3. Demonstrate respect, honor, and care for the places we visit and all their inhabitants. (Some exceptions for invasive species permitted.)

4. During Field Camp expeditions, give priority to fulfilling group needs before personal desires.

5. Treat group gear with appropriate care, commensurate or better than care you give to your personal gear.

6. Treat personal gear of other participants as they would, or as you would treat your own gear – whichever standard is higher.

7. Practice intellectual honesty and integrity, including standards defined by WWU at the following links.
   https://provost.wwu.edu/integrity
   https://wp.wwu.edu/academichonesty/

8. Contribute equitably in group projects, and work toward mutual accountability among all group members.

9. Participate actively in all Field Camp programs. Contribute via speaking, listening, and understanding as appropriate to group meetings, discussions, and decision sessions. Approach conflicts and conflict resolution as learning and growth opportunities. Avoid silent confusion and silent disagreement.

10. No “beef stew.” “No yucking someone’s yum.”
